

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Any project such as this requires a great deal of help from a large number of people. We met with over one hundred members of the University community, including representatives of the administration, faculty, staff, students, nearby residents, and political and community leaders. All had opinions and information to share. In particular, the President of the University, Janet Dudley-Eshbach and members of the Steering Committee have contributed their time, their knowledge of the University, and their honest comments on our work.

We want to thank a number of individuals that have made our job possible through their efforts. David Buchanan and Ellen Zinner along with their assistants, Vicki Robison and Tracy Hajir have controlled the flow of information, arranged meetings and spaces, and generally kept the entire project on track and moving. Bryan Price and his staff have furnished us with reams of high quality data about the university. We could not have done this study without your help.

Finally, we want to thank the entire Salisbury University community. You have made us feel at home and showed us what makes this institution a very special place.

Thank you.
