Highlights

- The Perdue School is home to the nation's second longest-running student entrepreneurship competition, first held in 1987, with a current annual prize pool of some $100,000.
- Since 2013, the Perdue School also has been home to the Philip E. and Carole R. Ratcliffe Foundation Shore Hatchery entrepreneurship competition, through which small business owners and developers throughout the Mid-Atlantic vie twice a year for their share of a $200,000 prize pool and mentorship from some of the region's most successful business owners. In the past decade, recipients have self-reported estimated profits of some $100 million, creating nearly 700 jobs.
- The Perdue School has twice hosted national auditions for the hit ABC-TV show *Shark Tank, with several Ratcliffe Foundation Shore Hatchery winners appearing and receiving business investment offers from the show's judges.
- The Perdue School's Mid-Atlantic Sales and Marketing Institute (MASMI) annually hosts students from around the U.S. for the National Shore Sales Challenge, a collegiate competition that allows students to sharpen their sales skills while networking with potential employers from more than a dozen national corporations.

- Since 1986, the Perdue School's Business, Economic, and Community Outreach Network (BEACON) has provided applied business and economic research support for hundreds of public and private entities, from state governments to Fortune 500 companies, giving SU students the hands-on experience they need to succeed after earning their degrees.
- Since 2001, Perdue School students have had the opportunity to earn real-world stock market experience through the Sea Gull Fund, a unique student-managed investment portfolio – currently valued at more than $2 million – with gains that have outperformed the Standard & Poor's average.
- Fraud and Forensic Accounting Certificate Program students are partnering with the Worcester County State's Attorney Office to help investigate and curb elder fraud in what is believed to be the only program of its kind in the nation – thanks to a $2.6 million grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.
- All students graduating with a Perdue School major are required to have an Applied Business Learning Experience (ABLE) internship, pairing on-the-job experience with a faculty-guided class as part of SU's ongoing commitment to experiential learning and career preparedness.
- Through the Cross-Atlantic Negotiation Competition, Perdue School students virtually join their counterparts at the University of Bucharest School of Law in Romania to practice international negotiation skills as part of a Fulbright-inspired faculty partnership.
- The Perdue School's Dave and Patsy Rommel Center for Entrepreneurship provides business and prototyping resources for students and community members, including a full makerspace.
- The Perdue School's undergraduate and M.B.A. programs have been AACSB-accredited since 1994.

Highlights

- Seidel School faculty have received millions of dollars in grants for projects ranging from strengthening Maryland's child care system, to increasing teacher diversity and student success, to providing SU students with hands-on experience to better prepare them to work with students with disabilities.
- The Seidel School is working to reduce teaching gaps by producing more middle and high school educators in science and mathematics thanks to a $1.2 million Robert Noyce Teacher Scholarship Program grant from the National Science Foundation.
- The Seidel School is helping migrant workers on the Delmarva Peninsula earn degrees through its College Assistance Migrant Program (CAMP), providing scholarship funding for first-year, full-time students who are engaged, or whose parents are engaged, in migrant and other seasonal farm work, thanks to a $2.1 million grant from the U.S. Department of Education.
- The Seidel School has earned multiple National Association for Professional Development Schools (NAPDS) awards for its PDS partnerships in seven Maryland counties.
- In the past 30-plus years, the Seidel School's May Literacy Center has helped more than 1,000 local children in kindergarten through eighth grade catch up and excel in literacy comprehension.
- The Seidel School-affiliated Eastern Shore Child Care Resource Center provides leadership, training, coaching, program support, and other services to child care providers, and assists families with finding child care in an effort to help bridge the Maryland child care gap.
- Seidel School faculty serve as the editorial team for the International Literacy Association's Journal of Adolescent & Adult Literacy.
- The Seidel School is accredited by the Association for Advancing Quality in Educator Preparation (AAQEP).
- Over 50 SU graduates have been Teachers of the Year in the past decade. In recent years, seven of nine Eastern Shore school superintendents have been SU alumni, along with many Delmarva teachers and administrators.
- In 2023, the Seidel School received a nearly $2.5 million Maryland Rebuilds: Growing a Highly Effective Childcare Workforce grant from the Maryland Department of Education to help child care workers and paraprofessionals earn their bachelor's degrees and teaching certifications in an effort to enhance opportunities for professional upward mobility.

OFFICE OF GRADUATE STUDIES & RESEARCH

By pursuing a graduate degree, SU students position themselves to reach unlimited heights and be leaders in their fields. Through SU's graduate offerings, students gain an even higher level of preparation through programs that are respected nationwide, provide distinctive opportunities for research and other hands-on scholarly activities, facilitate mentorship from accomplished faculty experts, and encourage a welcoming spirit of support and collaboration.

40+ Years

Honors education has been a part of Salisbury University, since the founding of the Bellavance Honors Program 1981 (named for then SU President Thom Bellavance).

More in-depth data on SU's programs, including enrollment and outcomes, is available at the University Analysis, Reporting and Assessment webpage: salisbury.edu/uara

Dean: Dr. Andrew Martino

The Honors Advantage

- Small classes (no more than 20 students)
- Tailored courses on interesting and unique subjects
- Opportunities to work closely with faculty members on individualized research
- Opportunity to participate in one of four freshmen Honors Living Learning Communities
- Priority class registration
- Access to honors advising
- Financial support for conference travel to regional and national conferences
- Scholarships

Highlights

- Students admitted into the CHC can choose between three programs: the Thomas E. Bellavance Honors Program (SU's original honors college program, founded in 1980), the Richard A. Henson Honors Program in Science and Mathematics, and the Business Honors Program. (A College of Health and Human Services Honors Program is also in the works.)
- The National Collegiate Honors Council named the Honors College publication The Saunterer the No. 1 honors print newsletter in the U.S. in 2017, 2019 and 2022.
- In 2021, Dr. Andrew Martino, dean of SU's Clarke Honors College was selected for the prestigious Fulbright International Education Administrators Program.
- CHC includes over 40 affiliated faculty members covering more than 20 disciplines.
- CHC offers several options for incoming freshmen who wish to participate in an Honors Living Learning Community (LLC). These communities offer students a special opportunity to live and study together throughout their freshman year. Students in Honors LLCs are mentored by Resident Assistants (RAs), who are fellow members of the Honors College, in Manokin and Pocomoke residence halls.
- CHC students in the Honors Student Association give back to the surrounding community through acts of community service and outreach events such as the City of Salisbury's 3rd Friday activities and the Maryland Folk Festival.

All SU students are encouraged to make their tomorrow about journeys, exploration and adventure. It has never been easier and more affordable to spend a whole semester or a few weeks in January or June studying abroad or away in the U.S. Credits transfer back to SU and can count toward a major, minor, General Education requirement or free electives.

Ways to Study Abroad

- SU In: These strategic centers offer SU course work year-round. Fall, winter, spring or summer students can study abroad at an "SU In ..." site.
 - SU In Spain
 - SU In Scotland
 - SU In Costa Rica
 - SU In Austria
 - SU In Italy (Coming Soon)
- Salisbury Abroad Exchanges: These semester-long study abroad programs cost the same (and sometimes less) than a semester in Salisbury. In addition to the SU In sites, there are Salisbury Abroad Exchanges in Ghana, France, South Korea, Sweden and Japan – with more sites under development.
- SU Global Seminars: SU faculty lead courses for two-four weeks during January and June. They are offered at the SU In sites as well as through other tours that vary year by year. Past Global Seminars have included Portugal, Honduras, France, England, Kenya, India, Iceland, Italy and South Africa.
- National Student Exchange (NSE): SU students spend a semester on exchange at more than 180 universities in the U.S., U.S. territories and Canada. Popular destinations include New Orleans, Alaska, Colorado and Hawaii. SU students pay the same cost as a semester in Salisbury.

Steps to Studying Abroad:

1. Review program pages for particular program online (course requirements, costs, etc.)
2. Talk to a peer advisor
3. Set up a meeting with a study abroad advisor
4. Meet with your academic advisor (to ensure desired program fits major/minor)
5. Apply to chosen program
6. Apply for study abroad financial aid
7. Submit enrollment forms in the online application (this commits the student to participating)
8. Attend orientation meetings
9. Go abroad!

Highlights

- More than 200 SU students study abroad every year.
- Study abroad semesters can be integrated into any four-year degree.
- Students in any major can integrate a Salisbury Abroad semester as first-year students or sophomores.

- In many majors, students can integrate an internship or undergraduate research project with advanced courses in their major or minor during a Salisbury Abroad semester.
- Learning about coral reef biology in Honduras, media communications in Mumbai or global health in Cape Town are just a handful of the hundreds of opportunities available through SU Study Abroad.
- SU offers multiple study abroad scholarship opportunities for qualifying students.
- For those interested in studying in other parts of the U.S. instead of internationally, SU offers a variety of “study away” programs through National Student Exchange.
- With partner institutions on six continents, SU facilitates international exchange programs with universities around the globe.
- SU also welcomes international students in Salisbury, many of whom pursue English as a foreign language through SU’s English Language Institute.

HIGH-IMPACT PRACTICES

In President Carolyn Ringer Lepre's inaugural State of the University Address, she shared her vision for SU – the Salisbury Seven – which includes a call to be “known for our innovative high-impact practices and our belief that we are educating the whole person for a lifetime of civic leadership and community service.”

90.9%
of graduates would choose SU again

More in-depth data on SU's programs, including enrollment and outcomes, is available at the University Analysis, Reporting and Assessment webpage: salisbury.edu/uara

SU's High-Impact Practices Include

- Civic Engagement
- Experiential Learning
- Undergraduate Research
- Study Abroad/Study Away
 - (See related section for details about SU's Study Abroad & Study Away programs)

What Are High-Impact Practices?

- The American Association of College and Universities shares that HIPs are teaching and learning practices that provide significant educational benefits for students who participate in them, including and especially those from demographic groups historically underserved by higher education.

Highlights:

- Among the key components of SU's General Education model (beginning fall 2024) are a First Year Seminar and Civic and Community Engagement requirement. All new students to SU must take a First Year Seminar to gain academic preparation and skills for educational and professional success through the exploration of a topic or issue. One of the three Signature Outcomes for the new model is Civic and Community Engagement, and students must take at least one course that includes such engagement.
- New students to SU are offered the opportunity to live on campus in one of our Living Learning Communities where students with common interests live together, share courses with out-of-class experiential learning experiences, have a faculty mentor to encourage them in and out of class, and participate in activities designed to bring the community theme to life. Current LLCs include:
 - Biomedical Science
 - Communication
 - Early & Elementary Education
 - Entrepreneurship
 - Environment & Sustainability
 - Honors
 - Performing Arts
 - Science, Technology, Engineering & Mathematics (STEM)
 - Social Justice & Community Engagement
 - Visual Arts
 - Wellness
- SU's Career Connections database connects students – and alumni – with internships, part-time and full-time jobs, workshops, job fairs and other useful resources to prepare for a successful career.
- Perdue School of Business students complete an Applied Business Learning Experience (ABLE) internship so they can gain relevant experience in their major and to give them valuable on-the-job experience that sets them apart once they enter the workforce.
- Even before it became part of the new General Education model, many majors required – and most encouraged – students to complete an experiential learning project or internship to earn their degree, from teaching interns in our area schools to nursing clinical practicums to history internships exploring our region's rich past.
- SU's Fraud Program in the Accounting and Legal Studies Program earned a $2.6 million federal grant to partner with area law enforcement and prosecutors to curb elder fraud. Fraud student gain valuable experiential learning through the program's internship program.
- For over 25 years, SU's AmeriCorps program – ShoreCorps – places hundreds of students with dozens of service sites across the Eastern Shore. These sites enhance the local sectors of the arts, community support, education, environment, health education, homelessness, volunteer management and youth development. In 2021, ShoreCorps awarded more than $250,000 in education money to its 147 student participants.
- SU's Institute for Public Affairs and Civic Engagement's (PACE) Presidential Citizen Scholars Program is a civic engagement program for SU students, with recent projects including assisting with English as a Second Language (ESL) classes for community members in a partnership with Wor-Wic Community College, music lessons for kids at the Newton Street Community Center, art events for kids and families, and a potential revival of the City's trolley circuit to provide greater access to transportation for community members.
- SU sends students every year to present at the National Conference on Undergraduate Research (NCUR) and has twice hosted this prestigious event.
- The Office of Undergraduate Research and Creative Activity (OURCA) supports faculty-student mentorship and scholarship through preparing, conducting and presenting original research and creative works. Its programs include:
 - SU Student Research Conference: This annual showcase of student work has been active for over 20 years.
 - SU Summer Research: Every summer, students across disciplines work with faculty mentors on research projects ranging from harmonic progressions in music to co-nesting patterns of southern flying squirrels. They then present their projects at an annual showcase event.
 - Undergraduate Research Fellows: These student ambassadors have been involved in the research and creative works development at the University and act as mentors who are new to the process.
 - Posters on the Bay: Annually, approximately 30 SU students travel to Annapolis to interact with state legislators and other state leaders by sharing their research and highlighting the important work being done at the University.
