Teaching Fellows in Literature may elect to write a thesis (ENGL 531) and may take up to six (6) hours in a supporting discipline with the approval of the Graduate Program Director. They are also expected to pass a comprehensive examination. Each of three questions will treat a different literary period and will be based on a reading list which will be distributed to students when they begin their course work. A fourth question will address material covered in the three required language and writing courses.
