In Fall 2008, Salisbury University's general education curriculum requirements significantly changed, especially in the areas of English, History, Humanities and Social Sciences. Additionally, most majors and minors within the Fulton School of Liberal Arts adjusted to a new four-credit format. Due to the curriculum changes, many students benefitted to change catalogs in order to follow these new curriculum requirements; other students did not benefit and therefore may remain in their catalog and complete their general education, major and minor requirements.

_____ I have reviewed my curriculum requirements with my advisor and
