

Guide for USM Activity Reporting in Faculty Success (Previously called the Faculty Extra-instructional Productivity (FEIP))

The USM Policy on Faculty Workload and Responsibilities \(II-1.25\) describes the USM Guidelines for Reporting Faculty Workload which is intended to acknowledge the full scope of contributions our faculty make to their disciplines, institutions, and the System, while also making clear that student learning remains the central focus of our degree-granting institutions. Considering this, SU is responsible for reporting aggregated data on several key faculty metrics that occurred between June 1, 2022-May 31, 2023.

To assist in making this as simple as possible, this year you will receive an email from Watermark Faculty Success which will link to your survey. There, you will find a prepopulated report (which will have the USM areas of activity that are required for reporting purposes for the specific time period required) for you to more easily review to ensure that all activities are included. If everything is there, you will hit submit and your survey will be completed. If you notice that you are missing activities, you will be able to add those missing data points in the “Activities” section, before returning to your survey, refreshing your report, and then submitting it. Stepwise instructions can be found below.

For those that have completed their annual review (or went through the Tenure and/or Promotion process) using Faculty Success, you will only need to add the additional activity that has occurred since submitting your 2022 evaluation or T&P application.
