

Asian Studies Minor

Fulton School of Liberal Arts

There is a world of opportunity beyond our borders. From increased job prospects to developing a more diverse mindset, there are many benefits to studying other cultures. No matter where your interests lie, minors like SU's Asian studies minor will help you take the world into your hands.

Why Choose an Asian Studies Minor?

At SU, we believe it's important for students to view the world from multiple perspectives. The warm and inclusive community at SU is the perfect environment to study other cultures – and with the many opportunities we provide, you never know where you'll find yourself in the future!

Study Language & Study Abroad

The best part about SU's Asian studies minor is the many learning opportunities students have to experience other cultures firsthand. Students have the option to learn foreign languages such as Chinese, Hindi, Japanese, Korean and Urdu, as well as take study abroad courses. SU has many partner institutions where students may choose to spend a full semester and take courses toward their minor.

“The most exciting aspect of the Asian studies minor is that students don't just learn about another culture, they get to experience it firsthand through study abroad and language training opportunities—which cost no more than regular SU tuition.”
