

Health Professions Advisory Program (HPAP)

The Health Professions Advising Program (HPAP)

is an advising and resource service available to all SU students, regardless of academic major. Health care career opportunities are plentiful and HPAP provides the infrastructure to:

- Guide students to an appropriate health career choice
- Incorporate the required courses into their academic curriculum
- Develop the knowledge and experiences necessary to gain admission to the health profession program of their choice
- Help prepare students for the graduate school application process via feedback on their personal statement and practice interview

Why SU?

A small school atmosphere is coupled with large school opportunities. Admission into health care programs, especially graduate programs, is contingent upon excellent grades and quality extracurricular experiences. Here's a sample of what SU offers:

- Dedicated faculty and staff with low student: faculty ratios and multiple opportunities for one-on-one interactions
- Focus on undergraduate research and achievement, including the Henson Research Program, Guerrieri Undergraduate Research Summer Program, the Henson Scholars Program and faculty projects campus wide
- Faculty advisors and research mentors across campus who encourage research, presentations and publications
- Organized activities through the Health Professions Advising Program and Career Services
- Tutoring and other academic assistance with department resources, the Center for Student Achievement and the Writing Center
- Off-campus experiences, such as the SU Volunteer Center and a physician-shadowing program
