

Maximize Your Employment Potential

Professional development is an important part of a student's learning experience at the Perdue School of Business. Given the nature of today's labor market, graduates must continue to learn and adapt to new industry trends. The Office of Professional Development plays a key role in preparing students to be more attractive applicants upon graduation, and ultimately more successful once employed.

The Office of Professional Development is embedded into the Perdue School curriculum, making it easier for students to access its resources and benefits. Different from Career Services – which offers internship and job postings, networking events, and job fairs – the Office of Professional Development is specifically focused on the professional knowledge and skill development of Perdue School students, so they are prepared for career advancement from their first position and beyond.

Achieve career success and advancement

What We Do

The Office of Professional Development is mirroring the best of talent and professional development found in progressive corporations, and threading that into curricular and co-curricular opportunities for undergraduate and Master of Business Administration students. Its services are also available to Perdue School alumni.

The services offered by the office include:

- Alumni referrals and mentoring
- Professional associations and networking
- Professional certificates and certifications
- Continuing education (including LinkedIn Learning)
- Professional self-assessment (including CareerLeader)
- Resumes and employment applications
- Cover letters
- Mock interviews
- Business field/industry research

- Presentation development
- Business writing
- Fellowships and scholarships
- Graduate school planning, applications and essays
