How did you spend your nights as a Salisbury student?

Thinking back on my time at Salisbury, one memory stands out vividly: the legendary Halo LAN parties in Chester Hall. It was a simpler time, back when we were all freshmen, and the dorm buzzed with the raw, unfiltered energy of new beginnings. Someone would yell "Halo tonight!" and within minutes our rooms became a chaotic network hub of Xboxes, extension cords snaked across the carpet, and laughter. SU wasn't just a place where I earned a degree; it was where I truly discovered my potential. Salisbury provided the perfect environment to grow, lead, and build lifelong connections. It's a place where you're empowered to not only learn, but to lead.

News

Students Assist SU Neighbors During 'The Big Event'

More than 200 Salisbury University students recently spent their Saturday raking leaves and performing other light yardwork for University neighbors during the SU Student Government Association's annual "The Big Event" community cleanup day. Students also volunteered with local organizations, including Chesapeake Housing Mission, through which they built a residential wheelchair ramp for a local community member, and Habitat for Humanity of Wicomico County.

SU Announced as Official Higher Education Partner of the Baltimore Orioles

Through the partnership, the Orioles and SU will host a series of unique student engagement opportunities designed to bridge the classroom and the sports industry. Salisbury students will have the opportunity to engage with Orioles front office staff, learning the business of baseball and receiving hands-on experience in human resources, finance, and other career fields. SU will also bring the Orioles directly to the classroom as students complete real-world capstone projects and present their ideas to Orioles team leadership.
