

LOCKERS

The vertical lockers on the first floor of the GAC can now be reserved for the semester. Library-supplied locks must be used. Visit the Library Service Desk M-F 8 a.m.-4 p.m. to reserve a locker.

AFRICAN AMERICAN HISTORY MONTH

You can find books by the various speakers coming to campus in February in the SU Libraries. Some selected books will be available on top of the shelves near the Library Service Desk, and there are many other books in the 3rd-floor stacks. The Nabb Center on the 4th floor holds many relevant books, images, and manuscripts. We also have these databases available on the A-Z Database List:

- African American Communities
- African American Music Reference
- Black Economic Empowerment
- Black Nationalism and the Revolutionary Action Movement
- Federal Surveillance of African Americans, 1920-1984
- Liberation Movements in Africa and African America
- Slavery in America and the World
- The Black Liberation Army and the Program of Armed Struggle

Taylor and Francis eBooks

This new collection of full-text eBooks may be accessed from the Libraries' A-Z Database List as well as from Research Port. The interdisciplinary subjects include China, Culture and Ethnicity, Ethics, Globalization, Human Rights, the Internet, Korea, Race and Ethnicity, Sexuality Studies, Social and Cultural Theory, and Urban Studies. It is easy to filter results to show only those e-books that we have access to by clicking a box in the upper left-hand corner of the results screen. Results show entire books as well as chapters containing information on the search topic.

Quilts and Native Americans

Two big exhibits opened in the GAC in late January. The lobby exhibit, You're on Indian Land..., is a collaboration among an Honors class last spring, a fall history class, local Native American communities, and our Nabb Center staff (with benches made by Facilities staff). The Thompson Gallery on the 4th floor hosts a follow-up to last fall's exhibit of quilts from the Nabb Center. Piecing It All Together: Quilts of the Eastern Shore features a colorful array of quilts on loan from local quilting guilds. The exhibits will be open until May 31. Enjoy them!

Did You Know ...

Studies have shown that males' top motivations for gift-giving on Valentine's Day are obligation and self-interest. You can read more about this in PsycINFO, available on the A-Z Database List.
