

EXHIBITS

From Coastal Maryland to the World: A Celebration in Images of Salisbury University Students Studying Around the World: This exhibit of student travel photos is in the GAC 1st-floor lobby and will be available through December 17.

Out of the Box: The Archives at the Nabb Research Center:

This exhibit shows off the wide variety of materials that can be found in the Nabb Research Center, which includes University Archives and Special Collections. Come see some really neat items! In the Thompson Gallery on the GAC 4th floor through December 17.

Textbooks on Reserve

We have textbooks for various courses on reserve at the Library Service Desk. You can find a list at the Library Service Desk or you can search by course from our online reserve page at https://tinyurl.com/SUreserves. Please keep in mind that these are physical textbooks. To comply with federal law, we are not able to circulate access cards for electronic resources that your instructors may require or that came with the textbooks. And we typically only have the main textbook for a course, not the supplementary readings. But if you can't afford the textbook or you find yourself with some free time between classes and want to do some work but didn't bring your textbook with you, feel free to check out a textbook on reserve.

Working on a Paper? We Can Help!

We know October is when you really start contemplating the how you're going to research and write that paper your professor assigned. Keep in mind that you can find help in the GAC:

- Library Guides—The Libraries have research guides for all departments and many individual courses that help you find subject-specific databases and other resources. You can find these on the Libraries home page—salisbury.edu/libraries/--just scroll down to Library Guides.
- Research Help—You can also ask for help finding sources or figuring out how to use databases or other resources at the Research Help Desk, which is the left side of the Library Service Desk on the 1st floor of the GAC.
- Writing Help—The University Writing Center can help you revise your paper and whip it into good shape before you turn it in. It's on the 2nd floor of the GAC.

Did You Know? As you eat your Halloween candy, you might enjoy knowing you are not alone. Worldwide, candy sales are expected to hit about $285 billion by 2025. The biggest candy maker in the world is Mars, but Hershey's is actually the biggest maker of chocolate candy in North America. You can learn this and much more about the candy industry in the Business Market Research Collection, available in our A-to-Z Database list.
